What type of the incident, two gunshot holes in the north side of Shoaf's home and two slugs of an unknown caliber on the ground. The slugs were similar to those used in muzzle-loading rifles, Schweickart said. Police also found wadding similar to that used in muzzle loaders in Rowold's back yard. A search of Rowold's home revealed no muzzle loaders, but police did find a small amount of black powder.

Director of the Health Care Division, pending a review of the study. The report presented scenarios for expanding the program at current per capita funding levels or at lower levels. It is most likely, the report noted, that funding likely won't increase, so expansion would lower the per capita spending. Indiana has already imple- mented many of the features adopted by six other states with similar programs on a state basis, according to the report.
