This is a detailed black and white map of a coastal area, likely a harbor or bay. The map features a grid of land parcels, many of which are labeled with numbers and letters, such as 'MELENA' and 'CITY'. A prominent winding river or canal flows through the center of the map, with several smaller tributaries. The map is overlaid with a network of lines and arrows, indicating movement or boundaries. The overall layout suggests a strategic or administrative map, possibly for military or civil planning. The map is oriented with the coastline on the left and the inland area on the right. The labels are in a serif font, and the map uses various line styles to represent different features, such as solid lines for roads or boundaries and dashed lines for other types of boundaries or features. The map is a high-contrast, black and white image, typical of a photocopy or a printed map.
